Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

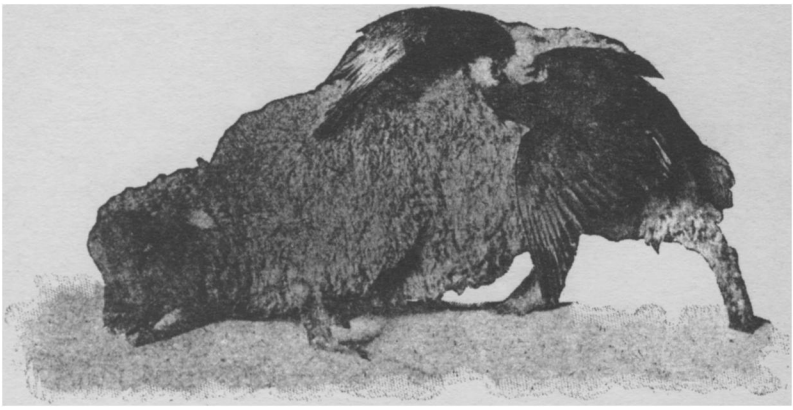
This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.



KEAS (PARROTS) OF NEW ZEALAND, ATTACKING SHEEP.

(One of the many smaller pictures in The Osprey.)

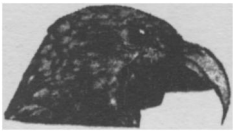
THE OSPREY



Is an established popular monthly which has taken the HIGHEST PLACE in its field. It has UNEQUALED opportunities for securing valuable and interesting contributions, through its close relations with most of the leading ornithologists, and all of the active field naturalists, of America. Not equaled in excellence of illustrations and make-up.

From a Grand-daughter of the Great Audubon:

"It is a beautiful magazine and we all enjoy it very much. It is delightful for those who, like ourselves, love the birds yet are not ornithologists (though I suppose we ought to be). After our immediate family have read and admired it, I lend it to the village library, where it is eagerly sought for, and I hope will interest our boys and young men sufficiently to induce them to protect rather than destroy the birds; even those who do not care so much for natural history are attracted by the beautiful pictures. With every wish for the success of so attractive a publication, I am very truly yours, M. R. AUDUBON."

Its average circulation since its first issue has been GREATER than that of any other published for Ornithology.

$1.00 A YEAR. 10 CENTS A COPY.

PUBLISHED BY

THE OSPREY COMPANY, 61 North Prairie Street, Galesburg, Ill.